Largest Amount Ever Paid to the Kentucky Common School Fund.

Frankfort, Ky., July 11. —Superintendent of Public Instruction Fuqua yesterday fixed the per capita for the ensuing school year ending June 30, 1907 at $3.30, the largest amount ever paid for the public education of school children by the common school fund of the State. Six Girls Drown Trying To Save One.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., July 13. —Lucille, Gladys, Jessie and Hazel Sweeting, aged, respectively, 7, 10, 12 and 13, Cora and Ruth Coyle, aged, 9 and 11, respectively, and Clara Usher, aged 15, were drowned in the Cedar river yesterday afternoon.

It appears that Lucille Sweeting, who was the first to fall, was the cause of the rescue, one at a time, and the seven were drowned within a few seconds. Six of the bodies were recovered in a short while, the alarm being given by Ruth Kiersey, who ran home as soon as she saw the others go down. The first four were daughters of J. D. Sweeting, the Coyle children were the daughters of Mrs. Coyle, of Sioux City, who were visiting her sister, Mrs. Henry Usher, mother of the last child to go into the hole.

Anderson Gets Next Encampment.

Henderson, Ky., July 12. —The State encampment of the Kentucky National Guard will be held at this place, beginning about August 13. The decision was arrived at to-day in a conference of Assistant Adj. Gen. Parrott, of Frankfort, Col. E. J. Dimmick, of the United States army, Capt. V. K. Dodge, of Lexington, and Capt. James B. Hesh, Adjutant Third Kentucky regiment.

The Two Great Leaders.

There seems to be no well founded reasons for the pessimistic view some of the leaders of the lesser political organizations take of the outlook for the country. With such men as Bryan and Roosevelt at the head of their respective organizations, each enthusiastically supported by the great bulk and file of his party, and the representing nine-tenths of the people of the country, and each as influential, so far as the influence of dollar-the evil god of the age-concerned as were Washington, Madison or Lincoln, the star of hope and expectancy should shine brightly from as blue a sky as ever enopined the country.

Bryan, without official prestige, a private citizen, has been for almost a decade pressing his ideas before the people and aside from the differences, honest ones in the main; on economics, his standard of statesmanship, his code of political ethics, meets the approval of most Americans, and his patriotism as intense and unselfish as that of Patrick Henry; his character as spotless and motives as pure as Ghostie's. His religion, seen in every act and word of all men, that of the lovely Nazarine, who taught the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, and who emphasized his teaching by the pouring out of his own blood.

Roosevelt, as president, standing where the shot and shell of the money devil were thickest, in an effort to shape or stay legislation, involving the very life of interests that aided in making him president, goes through the ordeal without even the smell of corruption upon his garments, rises above his party leaders in some instances and makes possible legislation in the interests of the masses. Erratic performance, in some things, yet showing the patriot in many, where the small selfish man would have turned partisan. With such men as these two the heroes of the nation, embodying their private as well as public lives, the ideals of the people, there seems no possibility of the desolation and degeneration of the pessimistic fellow who is without confidence in his fellowmen.

With such as these as leaders and a strong public sentiment standing for what the lives of these two mean God will still reign in this country. Grand Junction (Cal.) Sentinel.

Couldn't See It That Way.

"Father," he began, after taking the old man out back of the barn, "your years are many."

"Yes my son."

You have toiled early and late, and by the sweat of your face you have amassed this big farm."

"That's so, William."

"It has ruined me more than I can tell to see you, at your age, troubling yourself with the cares of life. Father, your declining days should be spent in the old arm-chair in the chimney corner."

"Yes, William, they should."

"Now, father, being you are old and feeble and helpless, give me a deed of the farm, and you and mother live out your few remaining days with me and Salbie."

"William," said the old man, as he pushed back his sleeves, "I think I see the drift of your remarks. When I am ready to start to the poor-house I'll play fool and hand over the deed."

"William!"

"Yes, sir."

"In order to dispel any delusion on your part that I am old, feeble and helpless, I'm going to knock down half an acre of cornstalks with your heels."

When the convention finally adjourned William crawled to the nearest haystack and cautiously whispered to himself, "And Sally was to broach the same thing to him at the same time. I wonder if she is mortally injured, or only crippled for life."

Impersonated DeKoven Man.

St. Louis, Mo., July 11. —Acting Chief of Police Gillespie to-day dispatched to his captain a description of a youth who by impersonating C. C. Durrick, of De Koven, Ky., deceived the Wertheimer-Swartz Shoe Company out of $200. As C. C. Durrick of De Koven is a customer of the Wertheimer-Swartz concern his impersonator was royally welcomed. After selecting about $150 worth of goods, "Durrick" departed saying he would return later in the day to complete his purchases. "Durrick" returned and incidentally learned from George Branch, the salesman who had waited on him, that the banks were closed. Branch willingly cashed a check for $50, drawn in the name of Mrs. S. S. Stewart, of the Bank of Henderson, Ky., and made payable to Hope Yates. The check proved to be worthless.

THE RECORD'S MINING NEWS

The Week's Doings Throughout the District Told in Paragraph.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS CONTINUE IN THE TERRITORY.

THE MARION DISTRICT.

The Great Northern Mining & Milling Co., has about completed the installation of a fine power plant at their mine on the Franks property (lately known as the Ada Florence Mine). They have installed ample boiler power, and also the installation includes a two stage Sullivan air compressor, of capacity of about 300 cu. ft. of free air per minute at 80 pounds pressure. Tames have been busy lately delivering fluorspar to the Kentucky Fluor Spar Co., who have purchased the mine out put of fluorspar. Especially rich lead and zinc ores are being reserved for future disposition. This promises to become one of the leading mines in the district.

Adjoining the Great Northern Mining & Milling Co. to the North, are the widow Hughes and the Larue tracts, properties held under lease by the Marion Lead & Zinc Co.; and Mr. Robert Larue states that he is advising the company will shortly commence operations, possibly on his place anyway, in the near future.

Lying to the South of and adjoining also the Great Northern Mining & Milling Co. is the wonderful Hopewell Mine. Last year this mine was a large producer of the finest quality of white lump fluorspar, and many tons of specially picked fine ore. It is given as an opinion that the run of mine fluorspar from this property will average 5 per cent. galena; and the specially reserved ore is more than three-fourths galena. Mr. C. S. Knight, President of the Marion Zinc Co., lately bought some of the picked lead ore from this mine, which was delivered to the Riley Separating Mill, for the purpose it is stated, to keep up the jig beds.

This Spring the Hopewell Mining Co. put down their shaft to a total depth of 200 old feet. A visitation to this shaft discloses in the bottom one of the largest and best "runs" of fluorspar-lead ore that has been seen in any mine on the Kentucky side of the Ohio River. The width of the "run" as showing in the shaft is about 14 feet, and seems more leady than usual in past ore exposures in this mine. On account of the crookedness of the shaft, the manager of the company has stated now that they have opened up the property so handsomely, rather than continue to operate under the disadvantages which they have experienced, the company purposes to sink a new shaft; and as the vein has a small dip, they will follow the incline and install a skip hoisting plant.

The Memphis Mine, property of the Kentucky Fluorspar Co., which is one of the oldest mines of the district, being opened some 40 years back, and which in the past has been about the largest single producer of fluorspar and of the finest quality in the district, has taken on new lease of life. From the first old main working shaft, finally sunk 180 feet, two runs of spar were stopped out to the North, from levels driven at about a depth of 100 feet and taking in the two runs with a "pinch" between, of total length of about 200 feet. Below 100 feet the first North run of spar in the vein would have kept increasing in distance back from the shaft (observation from past working in the upper levels), so that lower North levels were not afterwards driven on account of having too much rock to drive through out from the shaft before hoping to encounter the first North run of spar. To the South one run of spar was met out from this shaft, and the run was worked out from levels driven much below 100 feet—it is believed the lowest South level was located at about 140 feet; below which this run went out of the shaft, which is sunk the balance of 180 feet in a pinch.

At about the 100 foot level, South, work was continued ahead from the limit of the run of spar and a "pinch" driven through till another run was encountered. This pinch was possibly 25 feet in continuance. Below 100 feet, the pinch was never driven through in subsequent working of lower levels. No collar was left to the shaft, the method of mining practiced being to take off a height of about six feet at the shaft, whether rock or spar, and continuing this bench on forward with the vein; a modified form of underhand stoping; and the timbers rotting out after these many years, this one time famous "Memphis Mine" is now fallen in and abandoned.

About the time the 100 foot South level was driven on through the pinch and another run of fluorspar encountered, while set in about 200 feet along the vein from the main old shaft, a new shaft nominated the "Beck" shaft was started ahead to the South in the new run. This shaft is about 300 feet from the main old shaft. The same "bench" mining or modified form of underhand stoping was practiced in the Beck shaft, and in the newer run spar was worked out to the North towards the main old shaft as well as to the South; also towards the limit of the pinching of the run, and distanced about 100 feet from the Beck shaft, another shaft denominated the "Air Shaft" was sunk. After a depth of some 100 feet had been attained in these two shafts, alternately first one and then the other was sunk ahead of the other, so that either or both were for a long time used as a working shaft. A horse whim was set up at each for hoisting.

The run of fluorspar worked in these two shafts had an inclination in the vein towards the South; till at a depth of 135 feet, which is as deep as work was continued, the limit of the run was distanced some 135 back from the bottom of the Air shaft, where a pinch set in which was never attempted to penetrate, for reasons following. These workings are now idle and as with the oldest workings, are filled with water.

About a year and a half ago, a successful attempt was made to "find" the vein still further to the South. A stope was driven into the hillside, at a point about 400 feet from the Air shaft; and when the vein had been encountered, determination was made at the surface for starting an incline shaft on the vein; the Memphis Vein has an average dip of 70 degrees. This new shaft, denominated the Slope Shaft, has now been put down 110 feet. At 70 feet, levels both to the North and to the South have been driven, the total length taken together being about 300 feet, and at 100 feet another set of levels have been started off in the vein.

In the 70 foot levels the average width of the vein deposit is fully six feet; in places the width is ten, twelve, and even fourteen feet. Overhead stoping is being carried forward in a systematic manner, and preparations are now in progress to put down a winze, so as to provide for ventilation for the lower levels when they shall have been driven up.

It can readily be appreciated that a large body of fluorspar is blocked out in the present Memphis mine. The company report a present output of 500 tons per month. The product is the finest quality of the Kentucky district, the entire output being ground. Occasionally in the stores considerable patches of galena are met with, which when mined is stocked separately, and is afterwards concentrated at the company's mill located in Marion.

They have a model power plant here now: A Kewanee 80 h. p. boiler, brick-lined; a double engine hoist which handles a two ton skip; a Blaisdel air compressor capable of supplying a half doz. air hammer rock drills; and of course the smaller accessories.

More About Cobalt.

Carthage, Tenn., July 16th, 1906. My Dear Mr. Crider: I have your autographic letter which next to one I received from Mr. Edison yesterday I prize very highly and have left instructions in my will that these two letters are to be held, not for the postage as you may have imagined from the preceding, but to show how closely the penmanship of two really great men compare.

I mailed Mr. Edison's letter to Geo. P. this morning and told him if you desired to copy it in closing up the Cobalt ore matters you were at liberty to do so but I would like to have it back as nearly clean as the ordinary printing office would permit. Truly yours, D. C. R.

We published in our issue of July 6th an interview with Col. D. C. Roberts, formerly of Boston, later of Marion, Ky., and lastly of Carthage, Tenn., in which quite a deal was said about the mineral known as Cobalt and the wizard known as Edison.

Below we copy a letter from Mr. Thomas A. Edison to Col. Roberts which shows that he has not forgotten his first invention and in fact is still preserving it.

The act of preservation may be sentiment or it might be that Mr. Edison thinks that some future legislators will become utopians or could it possibly be that Col. Robert's tale got mixed and he was the inventor and Edison the Banker and still holds the "Vote Recorder" as collateral so to speak for the little matter of 300 plunks.

We will let our readers judge after reading the following letter:

Cable Address "Edison," New York, Laboratory of Thomas A. Edison.—Orange, New Jersey, July 12th, 1906.—Friend Roberts: Glad to hear from you. I have that "Vote Recorder," now in my sample case. Hope you are doing well. Am sending you by mail a couple of sample boxes of Cobalt ore so you can be on the lookout for them. They sometimes occur near Fluorspar.

Yours, Thos. A. Edison, To D. C. Roberts, Esq., Fluorspar Mines, Carthage, Tenn.

Three Sent to the Asylum.

Tuesday three persons were declared to be of unsound mind before juries in County Judge Blackburn's court. This was undoubtedly a record breaker for this county. The three persons sent to the asylum Tuesday were Ruby Hilliard, a girl about 14 years old; Kate Barnes, aged 38, and Henry Brasher, aged 30. Judge Blackburn became somewhat superstitious before night, and Will Clark, who started in to represent the persons in charge, quit and fled from the court room, declaring he believed it was "ketchin'." J. M. Freeman reported to County Attorney Henderson for duty Wednesday morning and was somewhat surprised when told there was no further business for the present.

Miners to be Tried for Contempt.

Owensboro, Ky., July 11. —A special session of federal court has been called to convene at Owensboro July 18. Twenty five union coal miners will be tried for contempt of court. It is alleged that they have violated an injunction by the federal court restraining them from interfering with the mines or non-union miners near Sturgis and Morganfield Ky.

School Per Capita.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Fuqua yesterday fixed the per capita for the ensuing year ending June 30, 1907, at $3.30, the largest amount ever paid for the public education of school children by the common school fund of the State. Owing to the number of pauper districts in the country, however, the per capita for the county will be less than $3.30.

Dick Dorr as a Republican.

Who has not said "and that reminds me?" The story as it comes through the columns of the exchanges anent the good luck and the bad luck and all kinds of luck of "Little Dick" Dorr, who now lives in Wichita, Kansas, reminds some of us of the story of his flop in politics and the consequences thereof. Of course this is a story and it may not be true. The RECORD gives it for what it is worth. You can take your choice. You can believe it or not believe it all at the rate of $1 per year for this sheet.

The story runs something like this: The trying ordeal of a double amputation was over "Little Dick" would live so said the learned medics. Slowing life came back and the blood was once more coursing freely through his veins.

The Missouri Pacific Railway doctors advised that he sit on the front porch and get some of the fresh Wichita air. Dick looked down where his feet ought to be and then the thought of his wife and the little Dorr's with mouths to feed and backs to clothe. A shiver went up his spine and he thought fast.

His neighbor who was a powerful factor in Kansas politics sat on his front porch too. Nothing separated them but a fence. In the dawning light of a happy thought "Little Dick" called his neighbor over and pointing to his children said "Neighbor I know what I am going to do for a living. I am going to run for the office of city clerk of Wichita."

His neighbor was delighted and said he could win easily and that he should have his support and much more in the same strain. Finally his neighbor casually mentioned the fact of Dick's long time Republican proclivities and his unrewarded Republican patriotism and that the sailing would be easy. Dick's heart sank. For the first time he realized that he had been a Democrat all his life and had never voted anything else. He said as much to his friend, whereupon the stuff was all off. His friend announced that he could not be elected dog pelter on the Democratic ticket in the city of Wichita. Dick was in despair. He looked at the backs to be clothed and mouths to be fed. Something had to be done. Therefore Dick announced very decidedly that he could run on the Republican ticket. In fact since he had been in the West (since he came to think of it) and had breathed pure Republican ozone from the Kansas prairies he had a very decided leaning in that direction. To make a long story short it was decided that very night. Dick's name went on the Republican ticket. He made a remarkable race. Nothing could head him on the home stretch and he won hands down. Nearly everybody voted for him and the railroad people twice. From comparative obscurity and the brink of the grave he was hoisted to one of the most conspicuous positions in the city. He was the most talked of man in Wichita. His lying enemies told on him that he had been a Democrat all his life way back yonder in Kentucky. Dick did not say anything but just laughed. Nobody believed them. Dick was elected and makes a fine officer. He hobbles around pretty well but will always have to walk with a cane. Think of Dick Dorr a wild haired, rampant Kansas Republican! If Dick's grandfather could have lived to have seen the day!!!

PUTS THEM WISE.

What Shall Women Do for a Living in Small Towns.

Every season sees crowds of girls and women flock into the great cities from the country and small towns, there to lose the womanly talents that should have blessed their homes, to have their character dwarfed or to be sucked under by the whirlpool of iniquity in which they find themselves. Unless a woman is a real exception she is almost sure to be drowned in the struggle for money getting—for money getting means success to her. There are too many others trying to reach the same goal she is struggling for, too many that have talents as good as hers, for her to hope to do anything really successful.

But she wants to be a money earner, must perhaps support herself or help support her family.

What must she do?
If she is wise she'll stay at home. "But there is nothing to do here!" She exclaims. Nothing! Why don't somebody point out to the mistaken girl the many uncrowded "ways" that are open to her, but perhaps even you have not noticed them and ask, "What are these ways?"

Of course you know and the girl knows that if she can sew well she is sure of plenty to do. She knows also that if she would, she can be a helper to some busy housewife. But many girls of today consider that the profession their grandmother honored and were honored for is "beneath" them. I don't and nothing can make me believe that anything can be more womanly than cooking, sewing and house work in general, if done well. I have heard of women who earn more than the ordinary type writer or clerk, by laundering fine lace, embroidery and extra fine garments that ordinary work would ruin. They do this work in spare moments, in small towns and are not considered as being beneath any body. They are invited to every thing go everywhere and are just as much honored as any other business women.

But those things are old and the average girl wants something different, something which she, in her mistaken way won't feel lowered.

There isn't anything for her? Yes, if she is really able to be a money earner in any way, there is. If there isn't any ready made opportunities lying around, (there generally isn't) why not make a few. That's the only way to succeed nowadays. The old rule of demand and supply works just as well turned round. Offer something never thought of before, and if it is good you're already a success.

I read the other day of a girl that supported her mother and herself by making covers for sofa pillows and cushions of all kinds. When trade became dull she sent some of her work to a shop in a city and they were sold on commission.

I know one girl who earns more than her pin money by embroidering any article that may find a ready sale, hats, handkerchiefs, collars, table covers, underwear, anything that can be beautified by a bit of needle painting.

Another girl whose talent turned in a different direction made bread, cakes, jams and jellies in her own home, for her busier friends. One girl who was talented in still another way gave music lessons to the little ones much cheaper than the busy and consequently high priced music teacher could. And one bright girl improved her own health and the family finances by raising a garden and chickens (a difficult combination) in the two small lots adjoining her home, and growing flowers and plants for sale on the small lawn.

A girl blessed with good health and a sunny nature could make herself indispensable even in a small town by nursing the sick. She could secure most of the needed knowledge from the doctors and books prepared especially for nurses.

It would not take any great talents, nothing but a love for children and a little education to conduct a vacation school for children. In every town are crowds of little ones, whose parents would be glad to place in school for a part of the day. Too many children are allowed to rust during vacation periods. All you would require for this work would be a spare room, a few children's books and magazines and a few pictures, and you could start in a profitable occupation, profitable not only to your purse but to your character as well. This idea could be used by the woman on the farm who has plenty of room and spare time. She could take the children to stay a few days or week at her home, giving them a good country time and a few lessons if desired and send them back and get a few more wee ones. A school might be conducted on a farm of the right sort and be made to pay. In town a school for the children who are under the school age might be conducted the year round.

A girl who has friends who place confidence in her good taste and judgment could make money by remodeling or suggesting a place for remodeling last season's hats and gowns, or by making designs for new ones. In a town where much entertaining is done a girl may make quite a success by thinking up new dinners, receptions and entertainments of all sorts. She could devise and help with the decorations and see that everything goes off smoothly.

In fact a girl blessed with originality, health and a desire to do anything that she can do, ought to be more able to succeed in a small town than anywhere else. At least she has more opportunities, but she can't succeed anywhere without work. A girl of the right sort never has to go far before she finds something to turn her hand to, and my parting advice is this, "Whatever your hand findeth to do, do with all your might."—May Jones.

Neglected Teeth.

It sounds rather far-fetched to talk of the toothbrush as a preventive of disease, and pneumonia germs are often present in the mouth even of a healthy person it is very evident that we cannot be too careful in dental cleanliness. Ill-kept teeth used to be regarded merely as a discomfort, only detriment to personal appearance.

We now realize that they endanger the general health. Children are never too young to be taught that both good health and personal self respect demand a conscientious use of the toothbrush.

Carrie Nation Arrested Again.

Dallas, Tex., July 12. Mrs. Carrie Nation was arrested at Cleburne by a Deputy United States Marshal on a warrant charging her with having misled the mails. She was brought to Dallas, and after appearing before United States Commissioner A. W. May, was released on bond in the sum of $2,500. The examining trial is set for July 31.

The warrant comes from Guthrie, Oklahoma, and specifies that she deposited in the post office a publication containing an improper article, headed "A Private Talk to Hays."

The Real Kentucky Brand.

A friend of ours in Kentucky sent us a souvenir of the Home Coming in the shape of a jug of ficker. We, of course, filled our tank to a degree of fullness and started home. We got as far as the sidewalk in front of our house and collapsed into a condition of dead asleep. When we awoke the coroner was sitting on a nail keg near us holding an inquest on our body. As we came to we heard a fellow say: "Poor Jack, he was an awful booze fighter, but he was as good a whistler as ever curled a lip." At that we are ready for a few more souvenirs. Free Press.

Drowned Near Carrsville.

Monday morning while in swimming two young men from Fairview were drowned. They were Mr. Joe Joiner, aged 25, and Mr. Harry Ralph, aged 20. This occurred at the upper end of the sand bar opposite Carrsville. All day that part of the river was dotted with skulls and boats dragging for the bodies. They were found Tuesday morning.

Local Option Contest.

Cadiz, July 13.—A petition, signed by over a thousand voters from the various precincts of this county, has been filed with County Judge Bingham, asking for an election, to be called for September 15, to take the sense of the voters of the county under the County Unit Bill as to whether the sale of whiskey shall be licensed in the county.

Allalfa Crop.

Last spring Jerry Hardesty, a farmer in the Western part of Crittenden county, sowed a bushel of alfalfa seed on his bottom land. Mr. Hardesty reports that the crop is very favorable and he expects to mow it two or three times.

This step of Mr. Hardesty is a wise step and should be a hint to the up-to-date farmer. Each year proves that forage plants must be more hardy in order to withstand the dry weather.

Dyspepsia, torrid liver, inflamed kidneys or chronic constipation are unknown after taking Electric Bitters a reasonable time. Guaranteed by Haynes & Taft, druggists. Price 50c.

One-Eared Bruin Came Back to Die

When Eph White rushed into Granther's house early this week and told how the Carpenter had shot a "furrble" of gray bear with only one ear and was exhibiting him at the store, Granther became so excited he nearly choked. Grabbing his hat, he followed the retreating Eph to the little knot of men who were viewing the carcass and speculating as to how and when the bear had lost his ear.

The bear, a veteran with tufts of dingy gray spotted along his back and blotches of whitish hair among his joints and muscular chest, lay in the center of the group. Without ado, Granther ran his remaining fingers across the skull and along the upper vertebrae. The next instant he exclaimed:

"It's him! It's him!"

"For land sake, who's him?" demanded like.

"Who?" chorried Granther, indignantly. "Why, it's One-Ear Bill. Yes, sir, that's the one who's here's his tother ear."

Living into his pocket, Granther brought up a worn purse made years ago by him from the ear of a bear.

"It does beat all how I've found the aggravatin' cuss after all these years," he chuckled.

"Sho' Granther, you don't figger he's the varmint you had the gold on with back in the fall of '67?" Eph fairly gasped.

Granther said it was and proceeded to unravel the yarn. In the days of the civil war, bears in Vermont, he said, had pretty much their own way in the uplands because the hunters were fighting in the south. When Granther, robust and fat, laid aside his faded uniform and donned overalls, he, like many another, set out to rid the hills of the noxious invaders.

In those days there was a state bounty of $15 on bears, and as it was a long way to the county seat, payment was made on the presentation of the right ear, provided the hunter would give his word that the capture was made within the state borders.

Granther had rushed in many ears and bears were beginning to be a nuisance when it was heard that a smashing big fellow was cutting up dimes by night near what is now the Bates place, and retreating to the crest of Mt. Mansfield at daybreak.

Shattering his muzzle loading musket Granther set forth and that night pitched camp a few rods above Tupper Spring. He knew that if the bear made nocturnal pilgrimages to the valley in search of sheep he could strike him away. At the end of the second day he did locate it, just where the old Sawyer bore road now strikes Pierce's Cutoff.

Just as the sky had cleared sufficiently to make shooting feasible a heavy body crashed through the bushes and there, he rode off with a small lump pig in his jaw, chased the bear then he leveled his trusty smooth-bore and fired.

"I never seen a varmint drop nobber," the veteran declared. "I'd have bet the bear had run right through the brain. When I lifted him I seen that I'd better be in an ax and snake him down the mountain. So I says I'll jest let off his right ear then I'll come back and get the cuss."

Wait and after I got the ear off that bear cuss a mighty heavy one fetched me such a shove with his right hind foot that I set right down. The next sound he was bolting like all fired dynamite an' hypern up the mountain. I loaded an took another shot, but I only clipped off his tail, an' away he went clean out o' sight.

"An' would he been cheatin' to collect the bounty on an ear with the bear that owned it campin' round. I bet it made into this ear purse an' I never seen the critter since until day. Now, you jest look for his tail, an' you'll see he ain't got none, an' at his left ear, an' you'll see a hole in it, an' then you feel of his skull an' you'll see where the bullet crossed the cuss, standin' him temporary."

Eph, like and all the others looked and nodded silently.

"Granther, said like, as he handed the veteran his hunting knife, "that's waller o' yourn do' seem water pattered out. Spose you lop off the varmint's other ear an' make you a brand new one." N. V. World.

Kentucky's Sons and Daughters. We are apt to consider New England as preeminently the region that sends us from and some of these New England states are now being populated by the sons and daughters of the old Kentucky. The sons and daughters of the old Kentucky are now being populated by the sons and daughters of the old Kentucky. The sons and daughters of the old Kentucky are now being populated by the sons and daughters of the old Kentucky.

Side-stepped It. Rivers stepping to show in his little flow do you smell a parrot? "Hello!" With or "Hello!" "Hello!" It looks like you don't quite know how to spell it. You don't have to spell it. You don't have to spell it. You don't have to spell it.

Remarkable.

The sad-eyed stranger at the cafe table was relating an interesting experience when we entered. We heard only his concluding words:

"Well, sir, when I received that letter notifying me of my good luck, I could hardly credit my senses. I actually had to pinch myself to see whether I was asleep or awake. And, by Jove, you know!" he added, after a pause, "I found I was asleep!"—Cleveland Leader.

Quite.

Brownson—And he told you for a fact he was going to be married? Joneley—Yes. Mrs.—What's her name again? Brownson—Oh! She's a widow, then? Joneley—Oh, rather! Widow and often.

Probably.

Mamma—I'm surprised to see you throwing away the crusts of your bread. You may see the day when you'll be glad to eat them. Tomboy—Aw, don't you s'pose they'll all be holdy an' not fit to eat by that time?—Cleveland Leader.

NOT ALL MUSIC.

"You must enjoy life in the spring." And life is hard grind!"—N. Y. He said.

The Reward of Endeavor. Told on as slowly as you may. To leave the world your debtor, some day will look wise and say he could have done it better.—Washington Star.

His Notion of It. This was how the geographer put it: "Where the pine forests of the south have been cleared away are now to be found flourishing truck farms."

This was the teacher's question: "What do we now find where the pine forests of the south have been cleared away?" And this was the answer: "Stumps."—Judge.

The Impelling Force. Kander saw your wife to-day, said old man, what made you decide to marry her? Hoppeck—Tearful! I'm glad Henrietta could hear you calling her that. Kander—Calling her what? Hoppeck—Yes, calling her "what!"—Philadelphia Press.

Slipped In the Bud. Jones: Yes, I intended to buy that shoe boot, but I went down there and stayed a week to look it over, and—Smith: Yes? Jones: And after paying my bill, I no longer had the price of the boot.—Judge.

A Disturbance in the Choir. Patience: Do you have any fights in your choir? Patience: No we. Well, I just guess we do. The soprano brought her trier, and the basso had his brindle bulldog with him last night and oh—it was just a lovely scrap!—Yonkers Statesman.

His Motor Boat. "You're so awfully little," said the seat to the loud turtle, "I don't see how you get around?" "Oh, I don't paddle my own canoe," said the turtle, "I take most of my trips on an alligator's back!"—Des Moines Press.

Contemptible Hypocrites. "He's one of these fellows who's crazy to get into society, isn't he?" "It's the very worst sort. He blames it on his wife and pretends that he doesn't care for that sort of thing!"—Philadelphia Press.

Women Remot That. Miss Palfrey seems to dislike Mr. O'Hall. "Yes, he tried to pay her a compliment. He made the mistake of telling her she was in the prime of life!"—Philadelphia Press.

His Kick. "You are a typewriter I can recommend her, she has the touch system down here." My wife uses the touch system. I want something different at my office."—Houston Post.

Helps Out. Don't you think a little quarrel now and then between lovers is a good thing? "Sure. It gives a man a chance to get caught up with the florist."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Gave Him a Turn. "Miss Pet just gave me a bad turn." "Indeed?" "Yes, she called me a crank!"—Houston Post.

No Improvement. Heed! It's a terrible thing to run out of gasoline. "Why, it doesn't smell then, does it?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Species Which Originated in India, and Which is Evidently Valuable for Forage.

This grass originated in India, but has now been carried to many other lands. It is found quite abundantly in the southern states. It is called smut grass from the fact that its heads become covered with a blackish smut after flowering. It grows luxuriantly on unimproved lands, and cattle and horses eat it with evident relish. It is a valuable grass. All parts of the plant are edible and succulent. It is closely pastured. It sprouts again quickly and has a long growing season, lasting from May till the coming of heavy frosts. It usually grows in low and small tufts. As yet it has not been largely cultivated, but scientists express the belief that it may become very valuable under cultivation.

FOR PULLING OLD POSTS.

Simple, But Effective Device Which Can Be Riggered Up in a Few Minutes.

A simple yet effective device for pulling old fence posts is shown in the sketch.

Points of Good Farm Wagon. Two points in a good farm wagon are a low body to save lifting, and a cut under for convenience in turning. The latter, however, calls for very low fore wheels, and the low wheels call for springs to modify the suddenness of the lift over obstacles.

If disease breaks out in the hog yard, take the well-bred away from the sick ones.

Japan's Museums. Japan has 4000 museums and the government labors directly to improve them.

Couldn't Stand It. "Beg pardon, sir," said the butler, "but I'm going to leave next week." "Don't I pay you enough?" queried Mr. Neurich. "Oh, yes, sir," answered the butler, "I have nothing to complain of on that score, and you are all right yourself, but I can't get along with your wife."

"How's that?" asked Neurich. "Why, you see, sir," explained the other, "she doesn't seem to realize that I run pack my grip and get out at any time, so she just bosses me around as if I was you, sir."—Chicago Daily News.

The Pot and the Kettle. "Really," said the little misanthrope, "it's something dreadful with that woman next door. She does nothing but talk the whole day long. She can't get any work done, I'm sure."

"Oh!" said Browne. "Who does she talk to?" "Why, to me, dear, of course," replied the charming creature. "Over the fence."

Two Readings. Funny Fellow (entering a restaurant)—I see you have a sign out here "Oysters. Families supplied."

Proprietor—Yes, sir. Funny Fellow—Well, I'd like a family. He, he! Proprietor—Sure, bring an oyster's family for the gentleman.—N. Y. Weekly.

Those Pigeonholed Manuscripts. Magazine Editor—This is a grand article; noble, glorious! By some renowned writer, isn't it?

Assistant—No, sir; by one Tom Haynes, of Haynesville. Shall I send it back?

Editor—No, it's too good to lose. Put it away until he becomes famous.—N. Y. Weekly.

Discretion. "You never joined in any of the criticism that was directed against the railroads while congress was in session?"

"No. You are I'm a commuter and know better than to talk back, no matter what a railroad does to me."—Washington Star.

Married Her. Hinks—So you've got married, old fellow, while I have been away?

Hinks—Yes. Hinks—Well, I congratulate you on having shaken off that she-dragon of a housekeeper of yours at last.

Hinks—Oh, don't make any mistake. I've married her!—Tit-Bits.

Socially Speaking. "Are the Irishmen what you would call in the swim?"

"Not exactly," answered Miss Cayenne. "They are just on the edge. They are what you might call 'waders,' but not 'swimmers.'"—Washington Star.

Quite a Difference. Patience—Was she disappointed in love?

Patience—No, only in marriage.—Yonkers Statesman.

SILENT FOR ONCE.

She—What did you think of me in the tableaux yesterday? He—I was surprised exceedingly—She—How complimentary? He—That you could hold your tongue so long!—Lustige Welt.

A Romantic View. The course of true love runs not straight—A smooth glide the race will make, For when the bat has kissed the fall they both agree to separate.—N. Y. Post.

Not Level. Church—Why do you refer to that man as a bad lot?

Gotham—Because he reminds me of some property I bought of him.

"Wasn't it on the level?" "No, neither is he."—Yonkers Statesman.

Yearning of a Lazy Man. Architect—Have you any ideas you wish embodied in the plans?

Sufferer—Yes, I wish the windows so placed that my wife can't possibly think that it is raining in all of them at night.—N. Y. Sun.

Not. Millionaire—The dealer sold me this "old master" very cheap.

Friend—Because he knew you, I suppose? Millionaire—No, not because he knew you.—Judge.

CHEAPER FARM LANDS.

Southwest Offers Best Opportunities For Securing Homes.

Many farmers in the Northern and Eastern states are selling their high priced lands and locating in the Southwest. Many who have been unable to own their homes in the older country are buying land in the new country.

Unusual opportunities exist along the lines of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain Route. The rich, alluvial, delta lands and river bottom lands of Southeast Missouri, Eastern Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, capable of producing 60 bushels of corn, a bale of cotton, 4 to 6 tons of alfalfa, 150 bushels of potatoes, and other grains, vegetables and hay crops, can be bought for $7.50 to $15.00 per acre. When cleared and slightly improved will rent for $4.00 to $6.00 per acre cash.

Uplands more rolling, lighter soil, adapted to fruit growing—peaches, pears, plums, grapes, berries, also melons, tomatoes and other vegetables, can be bought for $5 to $10 per acre in unimproved state. Many places with small clearings and some improvements can be bought very cheap.

This is a fine stock country. No long winter feeding. Free range, pure water, mild climate. A healthy growing country, with a great future.

Write for map and descriptive literature on Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Kansas and Indian Territory. Very cheap rates on first and third Tuesdays of each month.

The Crittenden Record.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

GEO. M. CRIDER, Editor and Publisher.
EUGENE GUESS, Associate Editor.

SUBSCRIPTION ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR.

Entered as second-class matter July 15, 1904, at the postoffice at Marion, Ky., under Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

FRIDAY, JULY 20, 1906.

No news from San Francisco these days, will be understood as good news.

Louisiana has declared for Bryan. Andrew Jackson will be getting jealous if this thing keeps up.

After looking over his record, no one will grumble because President Roosevelt draws his salary during his vacation.

This life is mostly made up of people who imagine they were intended to do something better than their present vocation.

Mrs. Shaw has announced that she intends to "tell all" and those of us who have not forgotten how, may as well begin to blush.

There are intimations that the Adalaid E. Stevenson boom is about to be taken from the shelf, dusted off and placed on exhibition again.

Tom Taggart, the National Democratic Chairman, need not be surprised to find his hotel properties raised to the dignity of a national issue, in the forthcoming campaign.

Does Mr. Bryan expect the common people to continue to toss aloft their $1.98 hats for him, if he puts in his time in London hobnobbing with lords and riding in automobiles.

Novelist Winston Churchill may not win the governorship of New Hampshire, but it may be predicted with entire safety that the episode will furnish him the material for another story.

The rain did not keep Mr. Roosevelt from talking to the Oyster Bayater. It would require something more than barometer pressure to bottle up the President's enthusiasm for talking.

Republican organs are still pointing to the fact that the recent Congress broke several records, while the Democratic organs profess to be thankful that the country didn't also go broke.

It appears that only 68 per cent. of the New York police force have been naturalized, and from the stories that leak out from time to time, it seems that even a still smaller percentage is civilized.

John D. Rockefeller will have to bury himself in one of his vast estates again. The sheriff, of Hancock county, Ohio, has a warrant for him. He is suspected of organizing a trust or monopoly in oil.

The finest quality of gasoline is said to have been withdrawn from the market, owing to the impossibility of supplying the enormous demand. However the public is used to doing with something "just as good."

Elsewhere in these columns will be found an article signed by Mary Jones entitled "What Shall Woman Do for a Living in Small Towns." The signature of course is pseudonym and the young lady is a school teacher and graduate of Marion Public School. The article shows the same thought and same care exercised by her when a pupil in school.

We published in this weeks issue a clipping from the Wichita Eagle giving an account of the settlement of R. N. Dorr, with the Missouri Pacific railroad. R. N. Dorr is a son of R. B. Dorr, and is known to all of our readers as "Little Dick". He is jovial, jolly and good natured. While living in Marion he married Miss DeGraffenreid. They have several children the youngest being only about two weeks old.

"Little Dick" is doing well in Wichita. He is city clerk and on the high road to political preferment which will no doubt place his name high up.

May he and his live long and prosper.

Wanted.

Some one to see that the ordinance preventing gentlemen (?) "spitting" on the sidewalk be enforced.

A humane society in Marion to prevent cruelty to dumb brutes, especially that noble animal, the horse.

The step stones put in at crossing on Moore street where it crosses Gum street.

To see the weeds cleared off the vacant lot where the "Old Marion Hotel" stood before the fire.

A pavement on West Gum street in front of Roe William's residence. This place is "awful" when it rains.

MINING NOTES.

Mining operations in the Francis district are active.

At the Asbridge mine another new shaft seventy-five feet deep has just been completed. A short level run out from this shaft has cut a large vein of number one spar. This is the second new shaft sunk on this property and all the levels run from both shafts are in fine spar. The veins in some places showing from eight to twelve feet thick.

The Wheatcroft mine is steadily at work and raising ore from an eight foot vein of number one spar.

Johnson Crider, the genial manager of the Pogue mine, is installing an eighty horse power plant at this mine. Everything will be new and up to date. A large output will be made as soon as plant is installed.

Parish mine is hard at work and is raising a fine grade of spar and lots of it.

The Sam Matthews' mine has a new shaft down seventy-five feet, with a drift thirty feet in spar. This shaft will be sunk deeper to cut lump spar instead of gravel.

The Kentucky shaft on the Yandell property is producing a good grade of gravel spar.

A new shaft is being sunk on the Yandell property and a contract has been let for one hundred feet. A fine grade of lump spar was struck near the surface.

At the Tabor mine the breast level shows spar six to ten feet thick and where an underhand stope has been run abreast of number one spar shows twelve feet high and from four to six feet thick. These two valuable properties are owned by R. C. Haase and others of St. Paul, and Capt. Haase of this city. Work will continue to be vigorously prosecuted during the summer and as soon as required an up to date mining plant will be installed at both places. These mines are well situated for railroad transportation, being two miles from the I. C. R. R.

The new mining plant at the Eclipse mine was started last week and worked like a charm. A number of the parties interested in this company were present and all left highly pleased. This is a very valuable property and has immense veins of spar and zinc on it. Orders were given to sink the present shaft one hundred feet deeper.

On the Edwards Mining Company's property, a plant is being installed to wash about one thousand tons of spar which is now out. They are raising fifty tons of ore a day and when the mining plant is completed this output will be doubled.

The Crittenden Coal and Coke Company and the Marion Coal Company are owned here in Marion by local capitalists.

Birthday Party.

On Thursday afternoon, July 12, Geneva Daniels very delightfully entertained a number of her little friends at the home of her parents.

In the Butterfly Contest Helen Sayre won the prize.

Those present were: Helen Hurley, Anna Cox, Linda Jenkins, Helen Sayre, Emma James, Robbie Moore, Elizabeth Cook, Miriam Blackburn, Frances Woods, of St. Louis, Rebecca Cromwell, of Henderson, Katherine Reed, Virginia and Isabel Guess, Dovie Carter, Marion Ainsworth, Louise Clement, Virginia Blue, Mamie and Ruth Haynes, Lucile Pollard, Bertha Haury, Virginia Flannery, Alice Boston, Margery Paris, Vera Conyer, Mildred Summerville and Florence Dean.

They all left wishing Geneva many more such happy birthdays.

Harry Weldon's Party.

Tuesday, Harry Weldon was nine years old and to celebrate the occasion, he invited several of his boy friends to help him.

They played ball and other games on the lawn.

Harry received quite a number of presents.

Neuralgia And Other Pain.

All pain in any disease is nerve pain, the result of a turbulent condition of the nerves.

The stabbing, lacerating, darting, burning, agonizing pain that comes from the prominent nerve branches, or sensory nerves, is neuralgia, and is the "big brother" of all the other pains.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills rarely ever fail to relieve these pains by soothing these larger nerves, and restoring their tranquility.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills leave no bad after-effects, and are a reliable remedy for every kind of pain, such as headache, backache, stomachache, sciatica, rheumatism and neuralgia.

They also relieve Dizziness, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Car-Sickness, and Distress after eating.

"For many years I have been a constant sufferer from neuralgia and headache, and have never been able to obtain any relief from various headache powders and capsules, until I tried Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They always cure my headache in five minutes time." FRED H. BINGLEY, Cashier 1st Nat. Bank, Atkinson, Neb.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will benefit, if it fails he will return your money. 25 doses, 25 cents. Never sold in bulk. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

BITS OF BY-PLAY.

Jim Henry's voice is the marvel of this county. It is related of him that several years ago while writing farm fire insurance he happened in one evening at the home of one of the DeHavens out on Piney. All the DeHavens are strong democrats. Rev. J. S. Henry, the father of Jim, a strong republican and at that time it was not generally known that Jim was a democrat. Jim made satisfactory arrangements for the night's lodging and as his eye took in the size of the dwelling and barn he quickly made a mental calculation of about what Mr.

DeHaven ought to have on each. After supper Jim tried the persuasive powers of the voice that had never failed him, but all to no purpose. Mr. DeHaven would not take out right now, in fact he did not much believe in insurance and all Jim's eloquence was wasted. Jim slept very little that night. The next morning he slowly mounted his horse and felt that it was a shame to leave as fine a risk as this with no insurance. As he turned to leave DeHaven asked him how he got his voice in the fix it was. Jim replied, "Mr. DeHaven I got my voice cracked hollowing for Cleveland." "Well get down off that horse then and write me a policy." Jim rode away an hour later with a heart as light as his voice.

Blackhawk lay in jail. The fates had been against him the night before and Policeman Cannan had run him in. As he peacefully slumbered this bright Sunday morning, he was not without companions for the flies had discovered that his face was a fine place to stroll. They capered up and capered down and all around about and over his countenance. There must have been a hundred engaged in a little game of tag or blind man's buff. We said he slumbered. It was hardly sleep and might be more accurately described as a stupor. Suddenly these buzzed into the room a little busy bee, who immediately got busy and alighting on the victim's nose he got very busy. Blackhawk seemed to be somewhat irritated, and raising his hand he scattered the wholely clan, exclaiming, "Now you all got to get off."

A prominent citizen of Marion recently said: "You may do little scaly tricks, but they will always come to light on you."

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The Paducah Presbytery composed of Dr. Thos. Cummins and Rev. R. E. C. Lawson, of Henderson, Ky., Rev. Frank M. Hawley, of Fulton, Ky., and Geo. M. Crider, of Marion, was called to order Saturday night, the 7th, by Dr. Cummins. The purpose of the meeting was to hear a sermon preached by Mr. Andres as a trial for ordination. The sermon on Sunday morning was preached by Dr. Cummins. His text was Heb. 11-1. Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. The sermon was a masterpiece of choice diction and logic. The thoughts were profound and made the hearers feel the greatness of true faith in Christ. By Faith the elders received a good report, was the first thought presented. The speaker demonstrated beyond the question of a doubt that the elders mentioned in the 11th chapter of Hebrews had the true faith. They through faith were enabled to understand the things that are otherwise undiscernable to the human mind. Faith is not blind trust, but is the substance of the things hoped for. Substance is that which stands under, or supports. This faith upholds the christian. Dr. Cummins then applied these principles to our faith in Christ and to the joy and satisfaction of his christian hearers proved that anything else is not faith, thereby refuting many anti-christian theories. The sermon was enjoyed by everyone who heard it. After the regular sermon the candidate took the vows of the church and was ordained and installed as pastor of the Marion church. Rev. Hawley then in a very eloquent and impressive speech delivered a charge to the pastor. This was followed by a few practical remarks by Rev. Lawson who spoke to the people on the relation of the people to the pastor. The service was a memorable one and those who attended were greatly helped by this impressive ceremony. The union service, which has been conducted by the ministers of the city, was held at the Presbyterian church Sunday night the 8th, and the sermon was preached by Rev. R. E. C. Lawson. His text was 1 Sam. 17-50. "So David preached over the Philistine with a sling and with a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slew him; but there was no sword in the hand of David." This sermon was full of good helpful thoughts. It brought to the minds of the hearers the way God works through his servants as He worked through the boy David. The leading thoughts were the necessity of courage and the use of the means at hand. The speaker impressed his audience with the great truths taught by this incident in the history of one of God's children. In this manner it is possible for the christian to overcome all obstacles. The day was one of great blessing to the people who gathered there to worship God, and they gladly welcome these men of God to return.

Eld. J. R. Clark preached in the grove at Pleasant Hill church, two miles east of Marion, Sunday, July 8. Text, "Wherefore seeing we are encompassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses let us lay aside the sin that doth so easily beset us and let us run with patience the race that is set before us etc." Heb. 12: 1-2. He said, "If we live in doubts and fears and despondency it is our own fault. Failure to look to God in faith causes faint heartedness. Exercise of a lively devoted faith keeps one in full assurance. The testimony of the departed witnesses is corroborated by the living witnesses. Lay aside every weight etc., implies an ability to do so, hence, our duty. The ancients in preparing for races wore weights so that in the test with weights removed they would be swifter. So when the sinners lay aside the weights of sin they are better prepared for the race in life. God approves energy and industry but demands righteousness of conduct. In business we are so prone to yield to some sin for the sake of an apparent gain. The professed Christian looks awkward when handicapped by crowded business methods. We should lay aside these weights of every day business life. Our first and best service belongs to and is due God. Neglect of duty impairs our usefulness in Christian life and causes one to be backward in worship. "The sin that doth so easily beset us." This is the sin of unbelief. Seems so easy for man to go astray. It is necessary to keep the eye constantly fixed on God. The weakness of the flesh makes the believer susceptible to the cunning craftiness of Satan." Rev. J. H. Butler filled the pulpit at the Baptist church Sunday morning and preached from the following text: Luke 10:42. "Mary has chosen that good part which cannot be taken away from her." The subject being "The One Thing Needful," was divided into four thoughts—Needful, Voluntary, Good and Sure.

The sermon at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning was preached on the subject of Judging. The text was taken from two passages of Scripture, Math. 7:1, Judge not that ye be not judged, and John 7:24, Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment. This presents both sides of the question. First the negative and then the positive. Judging is a universal principle, which is often misapplied. It is best to refrain from judging a brother, but when it becomes necessary we are not to judge according to the appearance, but we are to judge righteous judgment. Rev. Benjamin Andres addressed the united congregations at the Baptist church Sunday night. His subject was "Paul's Guide to Strength," derived from the 13th verse in the 16th chapter of 1 Cor. Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong. Men if they desire to be strong must be on their guard. This is the first point of strength. They must guard against temptation. They must watch for the coming of the Judge of all the earth, Jesus Christ. They must stand fast in the faith. To stand is the second point of strength. The strong man not only makes a stand, but he stands fast. The strong Christian stands fast in the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ. The point of strength is courage. Quit you like men. The world today needs men of courage. Men like Joseph, Daniel and Paul, who had courage to battle against the temptations and who remained firm in their faith.

Regular services at Presbyterian church next Sunday, Sunday school at 9:30. Preaching at 11 o'clock by the pastor.

DAMAGE SUIT SETTLED.

Richard N. Dorr Wins Victory Over the Missouri Railroad Company.

The damage suit of Richard N. Dorr, the present city clerk of Wichita, against the Missouri Pacific Railway company is ended. A small journal entry on the books of the clerk of the district court indicates that the case has been dismissed by mutual agreement of the attorneys representing Mr. Dorr and the railway company, the cost to be paid by the company. This means that a settlement has been effected between the company and Mr. Dorr and that one of the most noted damage suits ever brought against a railroad by an individual in Sedgewick county is ended. Mr. Dorr received $12,500 in settlement of his claim and said last night that the matter was settled in full.

Two years ago last April Mr. Dorr was a brakeman in the employ of the Missouri Pacific Railway company. While in the discharge of his duties he was thrown beneath the wheels of a moving train and both legs were cut off, one above and the other just below the knee. After many weeks of suffering he recovered sufficiently to begin a suit for damages against the company. From a strong young man, with a physique like an athlete he was reduced to the lot of a helpless cripple and all by reason of a defective safety appliance on an engine. In the court it was shown that it was not carelessness upon the part of Mr. Dorr that caused the accident, but in one of the most hotly contested cases ever in the district court here his attorneys, Houston & Brooks, proved the justice of their cause so clearly that the jury returned a verdict granting Mr. Dorr $35,000 damage against the company. This is the largest damage awarded for personal injuries ever made by a jury in Kansas and it excited much comment, not only in this state but elsewhere.

Naturally, with such a verdict against it, the company appealed the case to the supreme court and when it came on for a hearing there it was sent back for a new trial on a technicality. The case was still pending in the district court when the settlement was effected.

Mr. Dorr was elected city clerk a year ago last spring by the largest majority of any man on the ticket, which tends to show his popularity, and his many friends in Wichita will be glad to learn that the case has finally been settled so advantageously for him.

Lives in Three Centuries.

Centralia, Ill., July 14.—Peter White, a negro, has reached his 107th birthday. He was born in Virginia, a slave, and remained a bondsman until freed at the time of the civil war. White saw a large part of the war of 1812, and recalls many events of that day. He says he has seen Harrison, Polk, Tyler and other great men of early times.

Cold Blooded.

A woman in California has been granted a divorce from her husband on the ground that he is a consumptive. The promise "for better, for worse," seems to be but a mere preface to one in these days, in no way taken seriously by those who make it. Tuberculosis is not the most pleasant of things, but practical desertion on account of bad health does seem a bit too cold-blooded even for the formal atmosphere of courts.—Baltimore American.

Wives Did Not Object.

Mrs. J. B. Henderson, former Senator Henderson's wife, who had the honor of converting Wu Ting Fang to total abstinence and to vegetarianism, was talking about gambling at a dinner party in Washington.

"There is only one kind of gambling that I can endorse," Mrs. Henderson said. "That is the kind that was practiced in St. Louis by two young men I used to know."

"Hearing that these two young men were gambling heavily, I called on the wife of one of them one afternoon."

"Mary," I said, "I am told that John plays cards every night—plays for large stakes, too."

"The young woman nodded and smiled."

"Yes, that is true," she said, "but it's all right."

"What?" said I.

"Yes," she went on. "He always plays with the same person—with Mr. Blank. So, you see, it must be all right."

"No," I don't see," said I.

"But listen," the young woman explained. "Mrs. Blank makes her husband give her all his winnings, and then she gives the money to me. I hand her in my turn all the money my husband has won from hers. And so, you see, we both get our own husband's money, and have twice as much as we'd be able to get out of them in any other way."

SUMMERING OF HOGS.

Experience of a Missouri Farmer—How He Arranged His Farm for the Animals.

Last fall our 13 sows saved over 100 pigs, and all of these, except the few which have been sold at extra prices for breeding purposes, are ready for market, writes a Missouri correspondent of Farm and Home. An aged sow was sold and the remaining dozen gave nearly 100 pigs this spring. The cut shows the 10-acre farm cross-fenced into four equal squares. The south-east quarter is further divided into a three-acre barn lot, a blue grass pasture, d. of about equal size, a somewhat smaller piece containing orchard and garden, and along the west side a 60-foot lane from the house to the barn. The fences are of hog-tight wire.

For three years the house quarter, c, has been in grass. This field is roughly divided by a ditch into two parts of four and six acres respectively. The former is in red clover and the latter in alfalfa. Since its first year this meadow has been pastured considerably, but with so much care that it has steadily improved. The orchard, also, of 1 1/2 acres, is in clover.

The northwest field, a, is to be in corn this summer. The whole upper half of the farm furnished rye pasture all winter, and to May, when the fattening hogs were restricted to the barn lot and sold-fed with fresh alfalfa and clover. With the advent of spring the slop feed of the fall pigs is gradually changed to whole grain, and during the last few weeks of feeding the variety of grain gives way to corn alone. All of the swine have access to coal, salt, ashes and charcoal.

Toward the latter part of the winter, the brood sows were separated from the younger hogs and confined to the lane. When the ground was not soft they were allowed to run by themselves in one of the fields. It is always planned that the spring pigs shall come between March 15 and May 1.

Until the pigs are weaned the brood sows are kept in the grassy lane and allowed to use the pens which are floored. During this time they are supplied once a day with all the green alfalfa and clover they will eat, provided with an abundance of water to drink and sloped heavily morning and evening. Oats and corn, with a little bean meal, are used for the slop, which is never cooked, but is made with warm water on chilly days.

When the pigs are old enough to begin eating they are fed skim milk in a trough by themselves. Water and ground feed are added whenever the milk is insufficient.

During April, May and June a small opening in the fence will give the spring pigs a chance at the meadow, providing them with pasture, adding fertility to the field, and not materially lightening the hay crop. By the middle of June the youngest litter will have been weaned. As each sow is taken from her pigs she is removed to the orchard.

The boar receives less corn than the sows, but otherwise is fed about the same. Most of the time he is kept by himself and usually with more than one female several months in the year. At other times he occupies the orchard, eats blue grass in the cow pasture, or occasionally has to be confined to his pen for short periods.

During July and part of August the sows will be confined to the barn lot, but for a time in the latter month, they will be allowed to pasture on peas and beans in the corn field. They will enjoy this freedom as long as they do not molest the corn. After that they will spend several weeks in the barn lot again, with some opportunity of grazing in the field of soiling crops.

During the hot weather the swine of all ages have an abundance of shade. As at other times, they also have plenty of water to drink, but none in which to wallow. The breeding animals are fed grain, but not much corn except when it is needed to put or keep them in fat flesh. The growing pigs are given slop until new corn is ready. The constituents of this slop are varied to make, with whatever soiling crops are at hand, a balanced ration.

The barn lot and the lane, which contain some forest trees, are always available for the hogs and there is a constant supply of alfalfa and clover for any emergency. While at times nearly all the swine run together, yet their grain feed is given to them in the stationary troughs of the pens in the hog shed. Every animal is a pet and each one knows to what bunch he belongs. In this way, those of like age and also are fed together and special attention is given to the ones that need it, in order to have a fairly even drove at selling time.

TWO KINDS OF POULTRY MEN

The One Is Careless as to Details While the Other Is Faintly-talking.

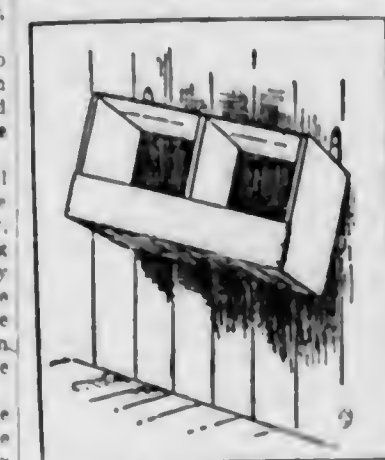

The most important idea to be impressed on those who are interested in making a success of keeping poultry, is thorough attention to small details. If you fail to do the little things you are pretty sure to fail. First, be your flock small or large, let them be thoroughbred, bought either in the form of eggs or fowls, from some one on whom you can depend. This insures you a strong foundation and gives you an attractive flock. Second, plan your houses intelligently and supply the birds at all times with the very best conditions. Here, declares the Ohio Farmer, is where you beat the careless fellow who is all right as long as the sun shines, but a rainy damp, cold day will come and then it finds his chickens—where? Out in the rain with wet, bedraggled plumage, looking all forlorn, trying to keep warm alongside a wire fence or in some dark, unhealthy corner. Where does it find the careful man's? In the scratch pen, sheltered from wind, rain and dampness, busy all day long hunting for the grain that is thrown in litter. The hens of the careless man want something to help egg production and they go plodding around over muddy ground hunting for it and they find little and must seek some sort of shelter to mope around and do nothing. But the careful man's birds are enjoying inexpensive necessities such as grit, oyster shell, charcoal, etc. Water is cheap and easily supplied, but the careless man lets his hens hunt for it and get some stagnant water that will do them harm. The careful man has made a water fountain and he has only to watch their enjoyment of this to realize its value.

And now they want to find a place to lay. The careless man lets them find any old place and has to search for what few eggs he gets. The careful man has clean nests, with china nest eggs literally coaxing biddy to come and tarry awhile. The day is over and night is at hand, and where shall biddy go to roost? On a dripping old apple tree, an old wagon or blinder, the edge of the horse stall, perhaps on a buggy top or seat, only to cause unsightliness and "cussing." But if you are the "careful man," the feathered lady roosts on a clean 2x3 scantling, underneath which there is a freshly-limed dropping board, in a well-ventilated pen, warm in winter no cracks in the siding to let in cold drafts which will cause sore throat and roup, and a house that is cool in summer. I think I hear some say: "Oh, I have tried and they will not do any good for me." But before you give up try the careful way and I will guarantee that you will say that nothing can surpass in profit and pleasure your investment in a flock of carefully looked-after, thoroughbred fowls.

SELF-CLEANING NEST BOX.

Utilization of Orange Boxes for Sanitary Equipment of Hen House.

An excellent pair of nests is made from an orange box from which the top and bottom have been removed. Place the box on its side and nail a strip of the removed wood upon bottom to make the front as shown. These hinge the box to the wall by the top, as indicated in the cut. The box will rest firmly against the wall and can be provided with nesting material. When this is soiled and broken the box can be raised to the position shown in the cut, when all the material in the nests will fall to the floor leaving the box clean. It is almost impossible, says the Orange Juice Farmer, to clean out the corners of a nest box that is nailed in place, and in the dirt that fills the corners vermin are sure to multiply. An orange box makes two handy nests, with almost no work and cleaned in this way makes cleaning easy.

For Young Chickens.

When young chickens lose their appetite, act droopy and have diarrhea of the bowels, give them rice boiled in milk. As soon as they begin to eat as if they relished the food feed for several days on the following ration: Boil a pint of milk and an egg together, then add cornmeal and white flour to thicken it like mush. It is a strengthening food and will usually bring them out all right.

Don't Overcrowd.

During hot summer days do not overcrowd little chicks. Move and clean coops frequently. A liberal whitewashing, with carbolic acid added, will help keep chicks healthy and kill lice and mites.

Green Food for Hens.

While a hen can live without green food, she is better with it. Whatever benefits her health and adds to her comfort increases her usefulness.

The State College of Kentucky

LEXINGTON, KY.

THE Agricultural and Mechanical (State) College of Kentucky offers the following courses of study, viz: Agricultural, chemical, biological, mathematical, physical, normal school, classical, mechanical engineering, civil engineering, mining engineering, each of which extends over four years and leads to a master's degree. Each course of study is organized under a separate faculty. The general faculty number nearly fifty professors and instructors.

County appointees receive tuition, room rent in dormitories, fuel and light, and if they remain ten months, traveling expenses.

The laboratories and museums are large, well equipped, comprehensive and modern. Military tactics and science are fully provided for as required by Congress. Graduates from the several courses of study readily find excellent positions and liberal remuneration. The demand is largely in excess of the ability of the college supply. The matriculation for the last year was, including Summer school, 815.

Specialists with the necessary number of assistants have charge of each department of natural science. Summer schools are provided for pedagogy, engineering and instruction in science and arts.

The State College of Kentucky is the only institution in the Commonwealth doing in any proper sense university work.

The college home for young women provides facilities for good board and lodging. It is well equipped with all modern conveniences, including bath room and a room for physical culture. It is heated by steam and lighted by electricity.

An opportunity is thus afforded to them of a thorough education in classics, modern languages, literature, science, mathematics, logic, metaphysics, history and political economy. No other institution in the State offers advantages for the education of women at all comparable to those offered by the State College of Kentucky.

A new Library building will, through the generosity of Mr. Carnegie, be erected during the next Collegiate year.

The Normal Department will be on a better footing than ever heretofore. Last year's largely increased attendance, with the unprecedented growth of the Summer Normal School, both indicate that an era of prosperity surpassing that of all previous years has opened for the Normal Department of the State College.

LINCOLN NATIONAL PARK.

Kentucky Should Lead the Way to Large Membership.

Kentucky is to lead the way in rolling up a membership for the Lincoln Farm Association.

The old farm on which Abraham Lincoln was born, and where he spent the early years of his boyhood, at Hodgenville, this State, is to be made into a great Lincoln National Park.

It is a great work of the whole people. Every man, woman and child in Kentucky is asked to join the Association and help make up the fund needed.

Send in any amount, from 25 cents to $25, and you will be made an honorary member without further dues or assessments whatever. The Association will send you a large, handsomely engraved certificate, and your name will be put in the Permanent Catalogue to be kept in a place of honor at the Park forever. Send your subscription to this office. Let every loyal Kentuckian join now and show the nation that Kentucky still leads in patriotism and loyalty to her great men.

The Louisville Daily Herald and THE RECORD both one year for $2.00.

An Evening Prayer.

(By Russell)

Slowly declines the day.
Softly the shadows lie
Upon the hill-tops gray;
Softly among the pines
The low winds whisper and sigh;
Softly the meadow brook
Goes murmuring by.
And, ere the night descends,
The evening star shines clear
Out of a cloudless sky.

Dear Father, this is the hour
Thou seemest most near;
I feel the touch of Thy dear hand,
And words of hope and cheer
Fall on my listening ear.
It is Thy voice I hear:
And I kneel and pray that my life
May be
Such only that seemeth good to Thee.
